Hi Paul,

Here is a preliminary of what we suggest the venue does to prepare for the exhibition. I will need to get you the color specs on the colors quoted here, but basically, snowfall is a very clean, bright white. We envision both floors being transformed into a white box, with grey floors. we are also detailing a window treatment for blocking out the light on the second floor and recommending that those coverings are also painted snowfall on both sides. this could really make this space very contemporary and suitable for any type of event that will follow. our hold-up right now in detailing the windows is trying to figure out a simple way to make the panels removable and reusable. Let me know if you would like more detailed renderings, which can have available by the end of the day Monday.

Hope all is well with you and that your meetings go well this week.

Dear Tatyana,

Good to hear from you. It is my suggestion that the point size of the font be made slightly smaller to avoid having to add pages to the design or to alter the design in any way. This will keep the production costs down as well. That has worked for us in other countries where the language translation is longer.

Best,

Judy

Our designer Alex Serdukoff is downloading it now (pls kindly cc him also from now on). Russian translations are ready; we only have to check it one more time already inside the graphic file.
And by the way Russian text is about 1,5 times longer bcs of the language specific.

Hi Paul,

How is the translation of the Bodies Revealed catalogue coming along?. We have posted the Quark 6 files to our FTP site so your graphic artist can place the translation into the design and return it to the FTP for our approval. (See the access to that FTP in red below.) We would also like a PDF of the Russian Quark at that time.

Once we approve those Quark files and you are ready to print, we would like a printer's proof before we give the final ok.

Dear Paul,

How exciting to bring a Bodies Revealed exhibition to St Petersburg. As you know, each Exhibition has a catalogue that accompanies it. Attached is a word document of that catalogue for your translator.

Following are our procedures for the design and production of the catalogue:

The catalogue was designed in Quark 6, a Macintosh program. We will upload those Quark 6 files to our ftp site within the next week so your graphic artist can place the Russian translation into the design. We will email the coordinates and the passwords to that ftp site as soon as it is uploaded.

When the Russian translation has been placed in the Quark 6, please have your graphic artist post those Quark files back to our ftp site. We will check them over, make any graphic adjustments necessary, and give you the approval to print after we get a proof from the printer. Gemmie Dayrit from Premier will be contacting you very shortly with information on the options for printing.

Please use the silver catalogue you have received as a template for choosing paper quality and ink. (Ink is specified in the Quark file.) As you can see, there is a silver ink involved throughout, which requires a 5 color press. Not only is using the silver ink a necessity to the design, but matching the color of the specimens in the catalogue is also very important when it comes time to print.

Please feel free to contact me with any questions you may have. We look forward to working with you and to having a very successful exhibition.

Best regards,

Can you kindly inform us on the exact quantity of catalogs we gonna print? We discussed 5000 and in Gemmie's mail I see 7500 pieces?

2nd important question – printing must be done strictly according to specs and scales in Quark file of catalog we gonna have, or we have to follow carefully the catalog samples we have?

According to Quark file. Is there a problem with this

Hello Alexander,

Good to hear from you.

The logo looks fine. As for using the font Futura, go ahead and use it in any form you feel is appropriate as a substitution for Scala. From your comments, you seem to have an excellent grasp of the look and feel of the catalogue so I trust it will look just fine.

I am attaching a PDF of the silver English catalogue for Bodies Revealed so you have an English guidepost for putting the Russian in the Quark.

We don't understand why you don't have the high rez photos. When we send the files they always come with a folder of fonts, a folder of high rez photos and the Quark 6 files in another folder. As soon as our IT fellow comes in I will have him check the files we sent you. If anything is missing, we will upload it and let you know where to find it. In the meantime, would you please check your files again to be sure.

Take care,

Judy

Dear Judy,

We're in process of making the Russian edition of the Bodies catalog. I've got some questions:

12/7/2007

1. You remember, we discussed the main catalog font and we have decided that the main text font should be replaced by OpiumNew. But in some cases we can't avoid using ScalaSans, and it still has no Cyrillic characters. When creating the Russian logo, we used Futura font to write "To See Is to Know" under the logo (see attached logo). It was almost the same font as ScalaSans and worked well. But now we are to use Cyrillic substitute of ScalaSans much more often, so I'm attaching the FuturaMedium examples for you to see it in action. It is the closest font to ScalaSans we've managed to find.
- 2.
3. Please let me know whether we can use it instead of ScalaSans in cases we can't avoid it. I will try using ScalaSans anyway where available. Note that we will use Futura only in caps (as it is in catalog). FuturaDemi can be used as a bold version of Futura.
- 4.
- 5.
6. Again: the catalog we have is in Spanish! It is OK, but the English version would be really appreciated since I don't speak Spanish.
- 7.
- 8.
9. The catalog certainly uses the pictures, which we don't have in high resolution. Please upload it to some FTP for us to get it. I can send you the list of exact filenames used in catalog.

I will stay in touch with you on catalog issues.

Kind regards,

Dear All,

Attached is the Visitor Travel Plan and Lobby Plan for Bodies Revealed. This PDF has most of the information that we will use during the install and may be a bit busy for you to study. Please let me know if this is the case and I will remove some unnecessary information. The lobby is also my suggested design, with ticketing in the enter of the space and a large area given for queuing. I have also provided about 40 sq m for Retail. The plan is scaled at 1/8"=1'

I am awake now and will be for a while, so please feel free to call me on my us cell tonight (this morning for you) if you have any pressing questions. I am also interested to hear what direction you have gone with Paint on the ground floor as it will affect some of the layout with the scrim.

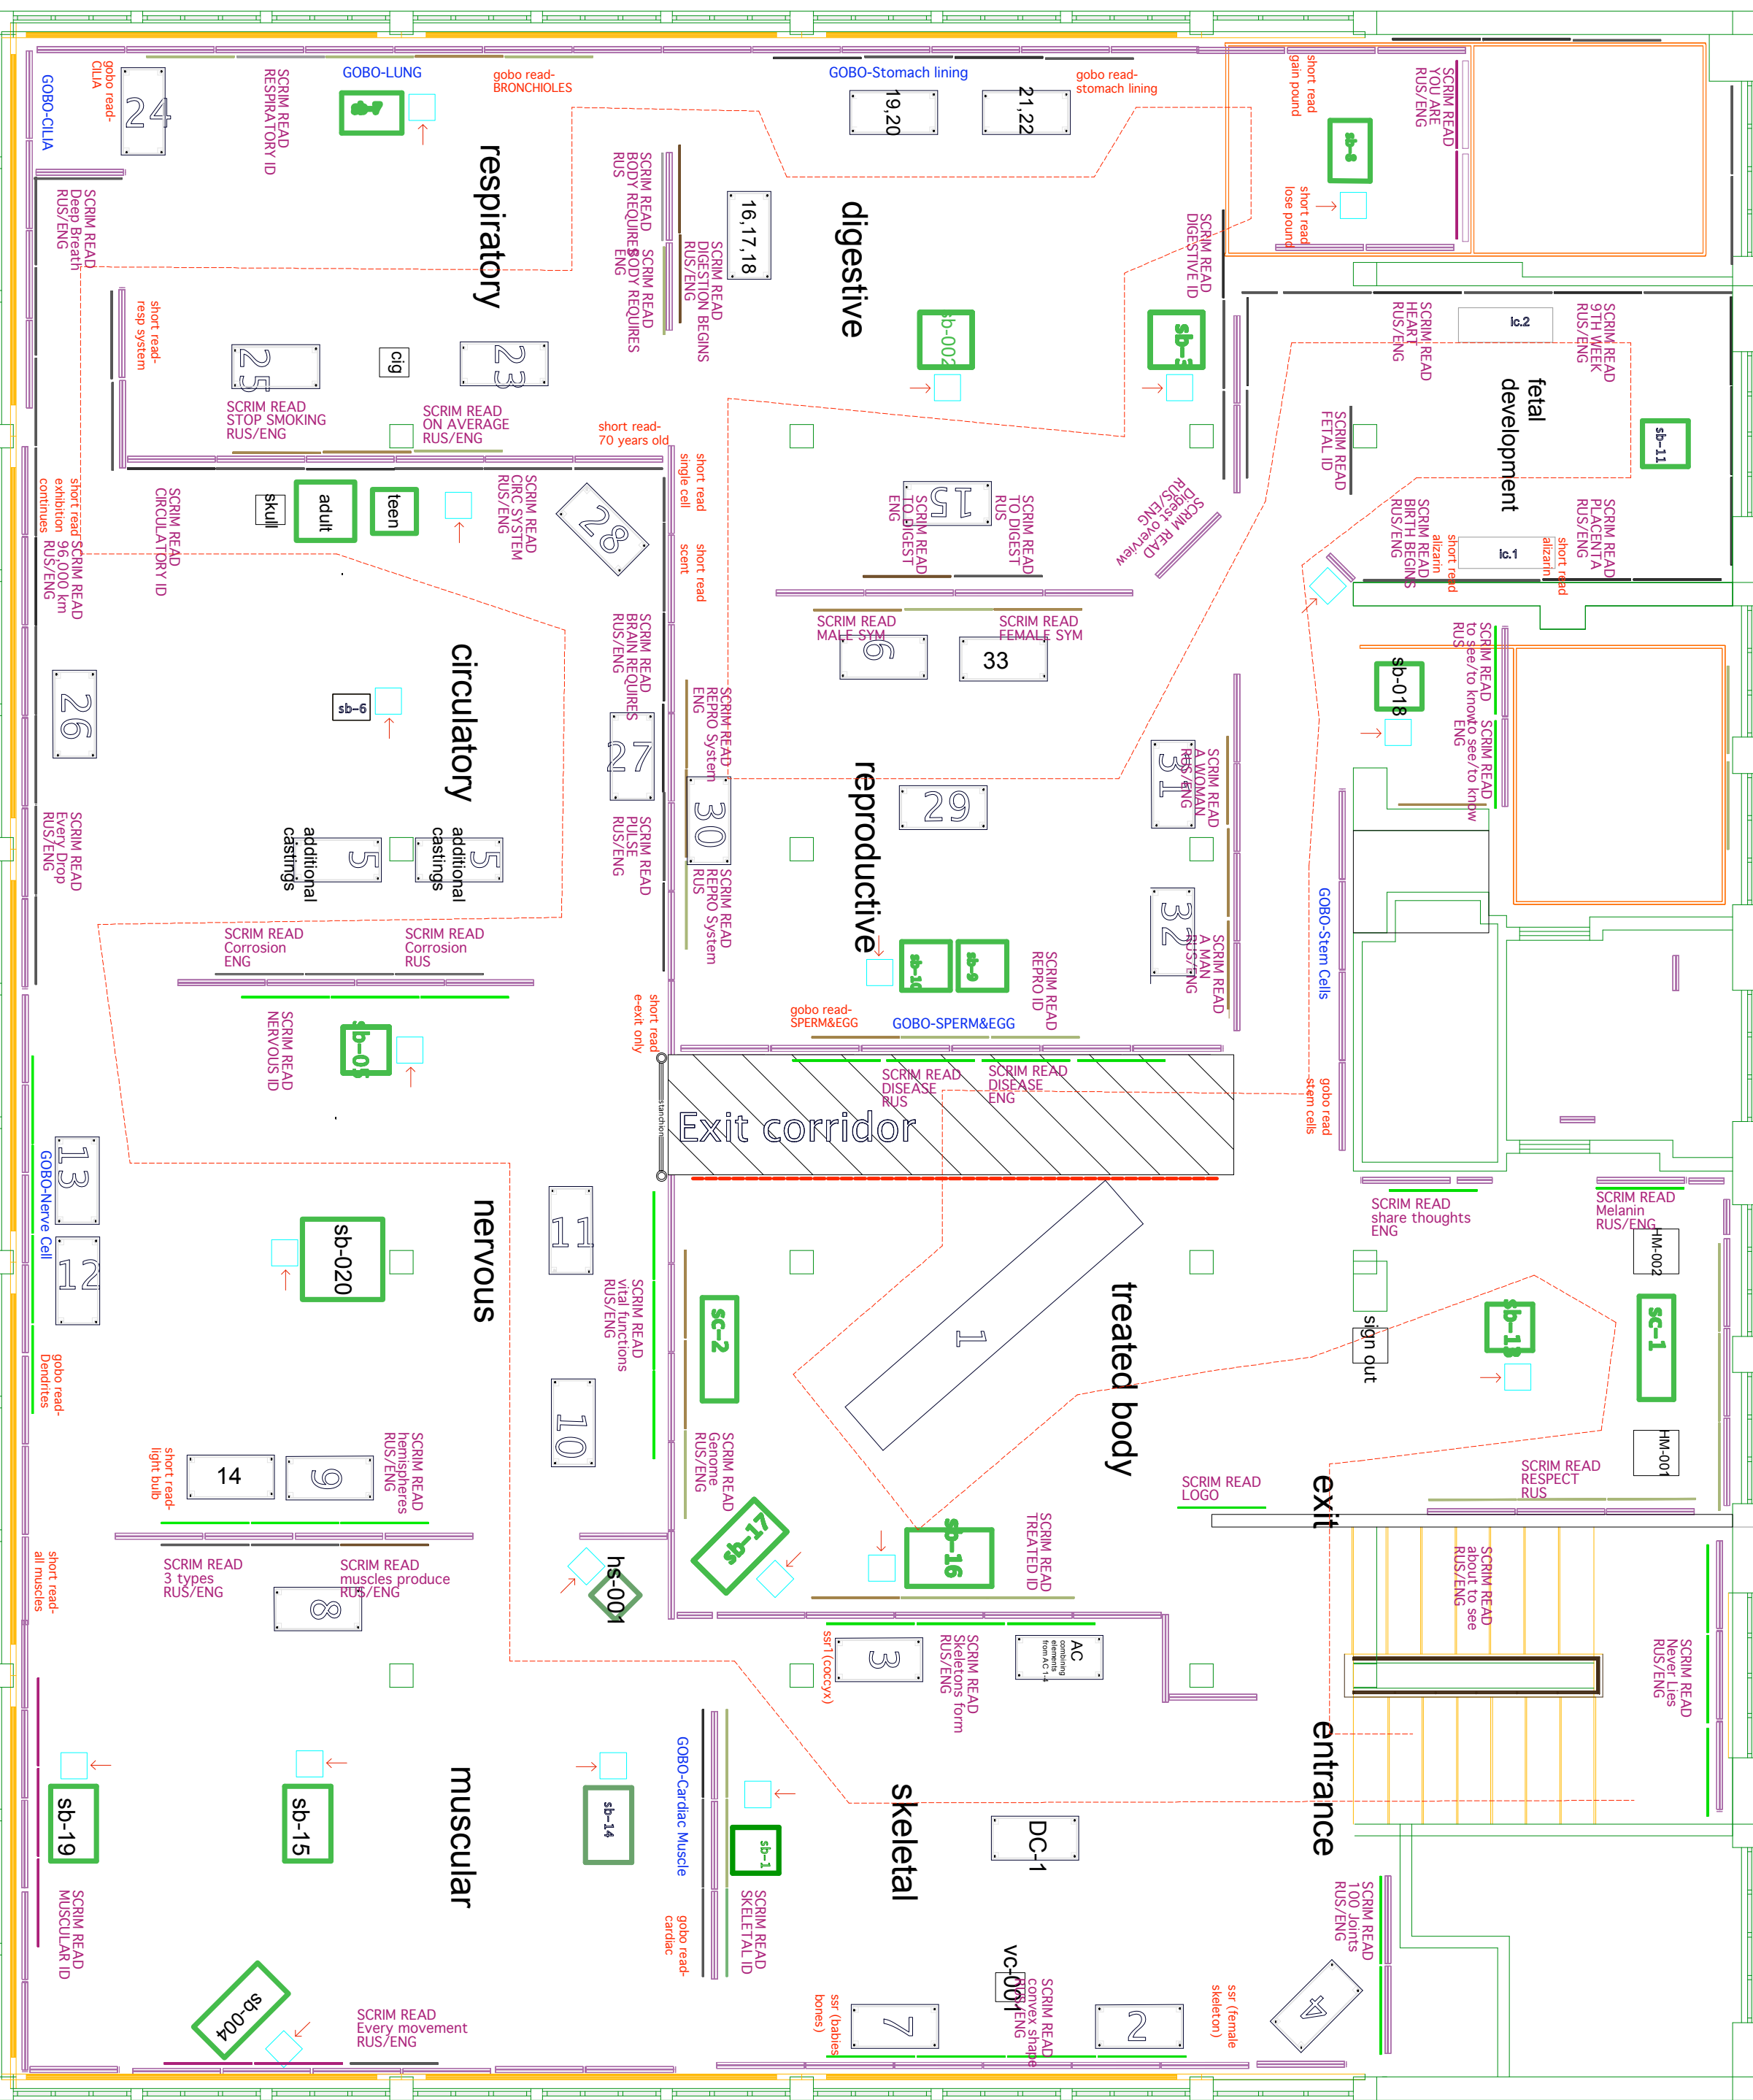

Please be aware that this plan will go through some fine tuning in the next two days and so may have some slight modifications to how you know see it.

I will be drawing an exiting plan for this exhibition in the next 24 hours. Please let me know what you need on that plan.

Very best,

John
